Professional Summary

Mareeon Darnell Walker is a theatrical and film actor, playwright, and director who started his career in 2019. He was born in 2007, March 30th; and stands at 6'1 Inches. Walker is known for his diverse theatrical performances, notably his rendition of "Wadsworth" in a play hosted at Warren Central High School. It was amongst the highest-grossing Theatrical Productions in the history of the Warren Central Theatre Department. With a background in performing arts, Mareeon has developed a unique style that blends realism, method, classical, and modern acting. More notable roles include his rendition of Charles Haversham in "The Play That Goes Wrong", which is widely considered amongst the "Best High School Theatrical Performances" at Warren Central High School. He has been in numerous Theatrical Productions, and in 2022 had his "on-screen" film debut in the short drama film "The Sacrifice (III)", where he played Young Larry. Walker is also known for being in an Honors choir named 16th Street Soul A Cappella, where he sang, rapped, and, most prominently, performed vocal percussion. He is a Co-Founder of a social media influencing group called NoLabelDotInc (NoLabel), and records, edits, and posts all the videos, as well as manages the accounts, members, and more. He continues to pursue his passion through directing high school productions, playwrighting, and more.

Walker's goal is to shake the film industry, creating space for individuals whose voices may go unheard. He shares a deep passion with talented individuals who lack the resources or privilege to pursue their dreams, and he strives to break barriers and share authenticity daily. A long-term goal of his is to run a nationally accredited talent agency that targets underprivileged individuals who have a passion for being a part of the film industry so that they may build connections and develop their sense of self.
